Dear Director:

I had been invited by [redacted] to attend the awards ceremony honoring him. I have the highest regard for Jim, both professionally and personally, and had planned to attend the ceremony. Personal matters intervened, however, and I had hoped to have the attached communications delivered through your office. I was greatly upset to find, after many assurances from Western Union, the telegrams were not delivered. I was deeply disappointed not to participate in the ceremony, and even more so to know that my attempts to communicate were unfulfilled.

[redacted]
[redacted] I am aware of the magnitude of the problems of your job. I wish you all of the best.

Warmest personal regards,
